of decentralization”. Although extensive progress has been made, Mr. Doss stressed that “there is no time for complacency”.

The SRSG, who attended the meeting for the first time, briefed on the next steps of the UNAMSIL drawdown. In reference to the recent UN Security Council discussions, he indicated that “the Security Council is keen to ensure that there is a soft departure of UNAMSIL and no abrupt breaks with Sierra Leone” and that “an assessment mission will be coming to Freetown in order to see, after consultations with stakeholders, how the drawdown can be calibrated”.

After an overview of the health sector by the Minister of Health, Dr. Agnes Taylor-Lewis, partners acknowledged that progress had been made in the area of reconstruction, but that equipment and staffing remain the main challenges. The US Ambassador, Mr. Cheavas stressed that “the country is vulnerable to the increase of HIV/AIDS” and called for “the Government, NGOs, CSO and donors to aggressively tackling this challenge”.

In his presentation on existing strategies, policies and priorities in the water and sanitation sector, the Deputy Director-General of the Sierra Leone Water Company (SALWACO), Mr. Francis Morjue indicated that “the WATSAN coverage had increased since the end of the conflict, but that coverage remains very low”. It was agreed that in order to build on current achievements, there is a need for an effective WATSAN policy that addresses coordination as well as institutional arrangements.

On road infrastructure, considered by the Vice-President “as one of the most important areas for economic development”, the Minister of Works, Dr. J. C Boima thanked donors for their support and welcome further contributions to address both feeder roads and to pave some of the arterial and major trunk roads.

In terms of next steps towards the completion of the Poverty Reduction Strategy Paper (PRSP), the meeting agreed to revise the PRSP process on quality, direction and timing and concluded that a final draft PRSP should be ready by July 2004.

The Vice-President thanked partners for a productive meeting and welcome them back again for the next DEPAC, scheduled for 11-12 March, which will, among others discuss: public finance management, micro-finance, private sector development, privatization and the PRSP.
